

BATTLING THE BLAZE at the Williams grain elevator fire at Junction late Sunday night was the Harrisburg Fire department, its truck seen in the left foreground. As no other water was available, the 500 gallons on the truck's hooster tank was all that could be used at the scene. The department, however, succeeded in saving some railroad box cars and some motors in a separate building.

Fire Destroys Williams Elevator At Junction

Owner Estimates His Loss at $40,000; Local Firemen Help Battle Blaze

Fire destroyed the Williams grain elevator and all its contents at Junction late yesterday. T. Y. Williams of Equality, elevator owner, estimated that his loss would be around $40,000. He added that it was a little early to decide definitely, but that he believed he would rebuild the elevator.

Mr. Williams said he had no idea as to how the big fire, which attracted people from miles around, got its start.

He said that besides the big lumber and galvanized iron building, he lost all his equipment, 6,000 or 7,000 bushels of corn and an undetermined number of bushels of soybeans.

Also burned up was a railroad box car, on a siding at the plant. Mr. Williams said that the Harrisburg fire department, which was called to the scene, could do nothing to save the elevator because it was too far gone, but that the local firemen saved three box cars and his motors, which were in a separate building on the grounds.

He stated he believed that nothing was salvageable in the burned building.

Mr. Williams said that the fire was discovered around 4 p. m.

Harrisburg Fire Chief L. G. Martin and Chester Estes, two of the four regular firemen, and four members of the volunteer department, Francis Pry, Jerry Pry, David Patterson and Leon Stull, made the trip to Junction to battle the fire.

Martin said that no other water was available and that the flames were fought with water from the booster tank on the fire truck. The tank holds 500 gallons.

Mr. Williams has operated the Junction elevator since 1928.

Calls Overload Dial-a-Devotion

The tape for the newly-installed Dial-a-Devotion at the First Christian church became hot because of the many calls and for a period those dialing that number (CL 3-3341) received a busy signal, the Rev. Glen Daugherty, pastor of the church stated today.

Telephone workers were installing a filter to eliminate any outside interference with the calls and have adjusted the tape to take care of any number of calls, the Rev. Daugherty stated.

Leave to Question Two Local Boys Held In Mississippi

Sheriff William T. Barrett and Harrisburg Police Chief Ross Lane left at 2 p. m. Sunday for New Albany, Miss., to question two Harrisburg youths about Saline county burglaries.

Held there are George Goolsby, 16, and Calvin Miller, 13, arrested by Mississippi state troopers Friday afternoon after they got some gasoline at a Tupelo, Miss., service station and fled without paying for it.

They have been questioned some by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, who learned that the 1954 Oldsmobile they were driving was stolen at Marion, that they had committed some burglaries around Harrisburg.

Since a number of burglaries were committed in the area during December, the two local officers plan to question the boys about all of them.

There was a possibility, it was said here, that the boys might be sentenced to a federal reformatory from New Albany and would not be brought back here.

Wary Eye on Domestic Problems

Gavels to Bang at Noon Tuesday to Signal Start of 1958 Session of Congress

WASHINGTON (UP)—Congress headed back to work today with one wary eye on domestic economic troubles while it prepared to tackle more pressing problems involving missiles and national defense.

The gavels will bang at noon Tuesday in the House and Senate to signal the start of the 1958 session. The atmosphere will contrast like black against white from the economy mood of the session which adjourned four months ago because the Soviet Union has since launched two Sputniks.

Now the mood is for a bigger budget, particularly to provide more money for missile development.

Prosperity Needed For Defense

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson told reporters it was "important to realize the necessity of maintaining a prosperous economy" to support the defense program. While pointing to defense and foreign policy as the chief problems facing Congress, he said gains made by the American people should not be destroyed "in the name of missiles."

Johnson said he expects Congress to pass legislation this year dealing with small business, farm, housing and other economic problems.

Many returning members have shown some restiveness over the economic outlook because farmers still seem to be in trouble and there is rising unemployment in the cities.

GOP Sees Business Upswing

The administration and Republican line is that a business pickup by midyear will correct the situation and brighten the picture.

But the Democrats, who form the majorities in the House and Senate, have long given much attention to bread-and-butter issues which affect the voters' pocket-book.

Rockefeller Panel

Warns Of Peril to U. S.

NEW YORK (UP)—A panel of noted Americans called today for a drastic shakeup of the armed forces and expenditure of an additional three billion dollars annually for defense to keep the Soviet bloc from getting the upper hand by 1960.

In a 25,000-word report issued on the eve of the opening of Congress, a Rockefeller Brothers Fund panel warned the nation that "it appears the United States is rapidly losing its lead over the U.S.S.R. in the military race."

"Unless present trends are reversed, the world balance of power will shift in favor of the Soviet bloc," the report said. "If that should happen, we are not likely to be given another chance to remedy our failings."

Report Took 18 Months
The report, which took 30 experts 18 months to prepare, recommended a sweeping corrective program including the following:

1. Elevation of the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to principal military adviser to the secretary of defense and the President.

2. Reorganization of the chiefs of staff on a unified basis to serve only as advisers to the chairman. The various service chiefs would devote themselves primarily to recruiting, training and supply.

3. Reorganization of all operational military forces—land, sea and air—into unified commands, with higher officers serving under the title of "officers of the armed forces of the United States."

Streamline Command

4. Streamlining of lines of command with the secretary of defense holding direct authority over all research, development and procurement.

5. An immediate increase of three billion dollars a year in the defense budget through 1965.

Nelson A. Rockefeller is chairman of the private foundation which provided funds for the study, and Dr. Henry A. Kissinger of the Harvard Center for International Affairs was director of the project.

Panel members included former Atomic Energy Commissioner Gordon Dean, nuclear physicist Edward Teller, Gen. Lucius D. Clay, Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, former Health Secretary Oveta Culp Hobby, publisher Henry R. Luce, and Charles M. Spofford, former U. S. deputy to NATO.

Brother-in-Law of Mrs. Kenneth Davis Is Killed in Auto Accident

Robert L. Clemmer, 42, Spring City, Tenn., brother-in-law of Mrs. Kenneth Davis, Harrisburg, was killed in an automobile accident early today, according to word received by Mrs. Davis. He was an engineer for the TVA. Mrs. Davis will leave Harrisburg late today to go to Spring City.

Testifies at Closed Door Senate Hearing

Lt. Gen. Gavin Also To Be Questioned About Resignation

WASHINGTON (UP)—Rear Adm. Hyman G. Rickover said today he fears "it is almost too late" to match Russia's achievements in missiles and other weapons.

The "father" of the atomic-powered submarine told the Senate Preparedness subcommittee that too many U. S. weapons projects, including missiles, "are hampered by red tape."

He testified behind closed doors but a summary of his testimony was made public by Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, subcommittee chairman and Senate Democratic leader.

The admiral said in answer to questions that "trained people are hounded by conferences and committees and a continual demand for offering justification for what they are doing."

Basically, he said, a project will be successful "when there is a clear line of authority and someone has authority to make decisions and stick to them."

Gavin to Testify

Johnson said that Rickover was "deeply concerned" over U. S. military capabilities versus the Russian's and was "very worried over the relative strengths."

The subcommittee resumed its investigation of the lagging U. S. missile program on the heels of an urgent new warning that the nation's survival depends on an immediate defense buildup. This finding by a so-called Rockefeller Committee of private citizens called for an extra three billion dollars a year for defense and a drastic shakeup of the U. S. armed forces.

Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin, who announced he intends to resign as the Army's research chief after recommending a revamping of the Joint Chiefs of Staff setup at the Pentagon, was to testify this afternoon.

The subcommittee wants to know if he was under "any pressure" to step aside. Gavin said he was resigning so he can be "freer to write and talk" about defense needs, but some senators said he was more valuable right where he is.

Lawmakers' Dilemma

Since it is now a foregone conclusion that the Eisenhower administration will ask for more money for defense in next year's budget, the main question is where the funds are to come from.

On the basis of his public remarks, the President seems likely to propose that the money be gained by cutting back farm aid, veterans' benefits and other domestic programs.

The obvious alternatives are to add to the federal debt by letting the budget slip out of balance, or to impose higher taxes.

The lawmakers who must face the voters in 1958, at least two of these prospects are somewhat less than cheerful.

The legislators operate on the theory that higher taxes are a red flag to the voters. And, as much as they talk of economy, the slashing of specific domestic programs is a course they seldom approve. Especially is this so if they have concrete evidence that their own constituents will suffer.

Letting the debt pile up further is admittedly an unattractive solution. But it is probably the one that will appeal to most lawmakers next year as the least of the evils from which they must choose.

Another Side

Of Soviet Science

We Americans are people of great enthusiasm who also are capable of great hand-wringing in times of trouble.

Lately we have been seriously exercised over the number of people Russia has been training in science and engineering. Our concern is proper, for all the evidence points to a dangerous lag in America.

But in our hasty appraisal of Russian educational achievements, broadcast endlessly under the stress of Soviet earth satellite launchings, we have somewhat overdrawn the picture.

The Wall Street Journal, in a useful survey, has put the story in fuller and better perspective. The upshot of its findings is that while Russia turns out more scientists than we do, only about a third of its students reach the top high school grades, whereas 75 per cent of ours get that high.

And fewer than 200,000 of its 1,400,000 secondary school graduates take university training, as against 725,000 of our total of equal size.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

by DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Ike's Friends Worried Over Dulles' Deadlock With Russia; Ike Considers Dulles Our Greatest Secretary Of State; Ohio Congressman Tells Nasser He "Dines With The Devil."

WASHINGTON. — A group of top American businessmen, including Paul Hoffman, former head of the Marshall Plan and chairman of Studobaker-Packard, met in New York the other day because of their worry over the rapid downside of the United States as a leader of the free world.

All of them were Republicans, most of them were among the original backers of President Eisenhower, and some of them have been close friends and advisers.

Worried over signs that Russia has taken the initiative from the U. S. A., they expressed private belief that our present foreign policy, under John Foster Dulles, was deadlocked.

Among other things, they examined Premier Bulganin's note to Eisenhower sent just before the NATO conference, believed several of his ideas offered avenues for further discussion. One was Bulganin's offer of a free, neutral zone between the West and Russia; another his offer of a nonaggression pact with the United States; another his offer to ban all arms shipments to the Near East.

The group felt that Secretary of State Dulles was so rigid in his refusal to talk to Russia that some way must be found to circumvent him. They considered the idea of getting Chancellor Adenauer, a shrewd, tough friend of the United States, to break the ice by talking to Bulganin. They also considered the idea of getting a special American negotiator to talk to the Russians—possibly Harold Stassen, though he was discarded on the ground that Dulles disliked him and so did Nixon and various Republican leaders.

Finally a confidential delegation was sent to see the President in Washington with the idea of persuading him to circumvent the sit-tight policy of John Foster Dulles.

The President, however, turned a deaf ear.

"The more I see of Foster," he said in substance, "the more he impresses me. I consider him the greatest secretary of State the United States has ever had."

WORRIES OF ISRAEL

Before Premier Ben-Gurion tried to get arms from West Germany, he wrote two urgent letters to Secretary Dulles pleading for American support to counteract the growing Arab power on Israel's borders. In the first letter, Ben-Gurion gave Israel's side of the border dispute with Jordan, noted that the U. S. A. has shipped arms to Jordan while banning arms shipments to Israel. Ben-Gurion followed with another strong letter asking for an American guarantee that we will defend Israel against any attack by the Arab nations. He pointed out that Russia is openly siding with the Arabs and pouring arms into Egypt and Syria. Israel, he said, has nowhere to turn for help but to the West. Dulles refused to give Ben-Gurion any guarantee of American aid, assured him of sympathetic support.

Blunt-talking Rep. Wayne Hays of Ohio had a long conference with President Nasser in Cairo recently, during which the Ohioan asked a lot of questions about the possibility of Soviet aid leading to the "penetration" of Egypt.

"Recent history would indicate that, one usually follows the other," remarked Hays. "I'm not worried about that," said Nasser. "I'm going to keep Egypt free of anybody's domination."

"That is a noteworthy ambition, Mr. President, and I hope you are successful," observed Hays. "However, in that connection I would like to remind you of an old American proverb—'he who dines with the devil should have a spoon with a long handle.'"

Nasser was silent for a moment, then erupted into hollow laughter.

17 JEWELS ARE ENOUGH

Not many if businessmen are as frank as Ralph Lazrus, president of Benrus Watches, who told a Senate subcommittee that the value of jeweled watches after 17 jewels was chiefly "eye-wash."

Lazrus was being questioned by Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois. Douglas: Does the addition of this further number of jewels really add to the efficiency of the watch or is it so much eyewash designed to give the watch greater sales?

Lazrus: Mostly eyewash. Douglas: The 21-jewel watch is really not any more efficient? Lazrus: It does add slightly to the efficiency. Douglas: Is it more salable? Lazrus: That is it—more salable.

Douglas: In other words, not just the touch of garlic which redeems the soup, but really a surplus. I would say that if these hearings do no more than to spread those words abroad through the country—

Lazrus: We won't be able to spread it far enough. Max Rabb, the cabinet secretary, will try serving tea before cabinet meetings to reduce tension and save ulcers. The suggestion was made by Kiichi Aichi, Japan's cabinet secretary, who claimed that the Japanese habit of drinking tea before talking business accounted for Japan's lower heart and ulcer rate. Rabb bought a tea set in Tokyo and promised to introduce the Japanese custom at American cabinet meetings. One cabinet officer who won't approve of the innovation is Secretary of

Thinking It Over

By Robert L. Dieffenbacher, D. D. Written for NEA Service Patience is a jewel from the crown of the King of Kings. It is not a jewel for which thieves wish to steal for their own possession. It is not a material stone which can be reshaped to suit man's will. Nor is it so brilliant that it dazzles those who look upon it.

This spiritual jewel is buried deep in the souls of a few people. It grows like the pearl hidden in the oyster, except that this spiritual pearl cannot be pried loose and sold on the market place. A tiny grain of patience can be nurtured by a loving God if it exists in a devoted spirit. Patience once grew within the

Miss Glenna O'Neal

Mrs. Hazel O'Neal of Ozark is announcing the engagement of her daughter, Miss Glenna O'Neal, to Jerry Holden, son of Mrs. Charles Boyd of Harrisburg. Miss O'Neal is attending SIU, Carbondale, and Mr. Holden is attending the Johnson Ministerial College in Knoxville, Tenn.

For Auld Lang Syne And The Dale Wilsons'

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Wilson, Arlington Heights, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Wallace on New Year's Eve for the annual party in their home held to honor a custom of many years' standing. Mr. Wilson was formerly superintendent of schools for Saline county and the family lived in Harrisburg until last spring. Mrs. Wilson taught at the Dorrisville school. Mr. and Mrs. Louie Beltz were the other guests at the annual party and Mr. and Mrs. John Dameron were prevented from attending by Mr. Dameron's illness.

There was a potluck dinner in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Beltz, Friday evening for the Wilsons, celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary, which is actually New Year's Eve. Mr. and Mrs. John Dameron were with the group at this dinner and all of the friends joined in wishing the Wilsons many more happy years together by presenting them with an anniversary gift.

The annual party started as a winners' dinner for high score at bridge in the bridge club of which they were members. The club started about 1940 and it was customary for the women to compete with the men and keep a running score throughout the year. If the men won, their wives cooked them a dinner, but if the wives won, the gentlemen took them out for dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson arrived in Harrisburg New Year's Eve and returned to their home Sunday.

Mrs. Wickham, program chairman, gave the devotion on prayer and Mrs. Hubert Hawkins presented the topic, "Outside My Window," followed by Mrs. M. R. Williams' topic, "Cuban's Bible Clinic."

The business and devotional meeting was closed with prayer and refreshments of pudding and spiced tea were served.

The Errica Morris circle met with Mrs. Everett Hood, Thursday, and 14 members answered roll call. Mrs. Guy Lawrence, president, called for the minutes and reports. Community mission assignments were made by the chairman and members reported on visitations and the distribution of flowers and baskets to shut-ins. Mrs. L. I. Webb gave the devotion and Mrs. Charles Wilson and Mrs. Paul Hays presented topics. Refreshments were served.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Dies

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. — Asst. U. S. Atty. Edward G. Maag, whose investigation of labor racketeering in 1954 resulted in 11 convictions or pleas of guilty, has submitted his resignation and will enter private law practice.

Maag said he will leave government service Jan. 24 to join the law firm of Walker & Williams, East St. Louis. He was appointed to his present post in November, 1953.

Maag headed the investigation that led to the conviction, among others, of Evan R. Dale, president of the Southern Illinois District Council of Hod Carriers and Laborers. Dale was charged with attempting to extort one million dollars from a contractor on the Joplin atomic energy facility.

Strikes Begin At M-W Stores

WASHINGTON — AFL-CIO Retail Clerks went on strike today against an undisclosed number of Montgomery Ward stores to enforce their demands for shorter hours and higher pay.

Union members paraded and distributed hand bills in front of about 500 retail outlets of the big mail order firm.

William Maguire, assistant to Union President James A. Suftridge, said regional directors had authority to change a strike directive issued by national headquarters to meet "local conditions." So far, he said, he has received no reports back from the field on how many stores had actually been struck.

The walkout was ordered after the collapse on Saturday of negotiations conducted here on a new contract for 5,000 workers at 61 Montgomery Ward stores.

The union had demanded a general increase of 10 cents an hour, a five-day, 40-hour work week and other benefits.

The company refused to agree on an across-the-board pay increase, but said it would grant merit raises as it saw fit. It said the union failed to take "local conditions" into consideration.

Soviets Cut Armed Forces By 300,000 Men

MOSCOW — The Soviet government announced a cut of 300,000 men from its armed forces tonight and challenged the Western Big Three to match "this act of good will."

A government communique said the cutbacks will include withdrawal of 41,000 men from East Germany and 17,000 from Hungary.

The reduction was no surprise to Western observers. Last month the Supreme Soviet "recommended" that the Soviet government consider reductions in view of the improved international situation.

Soviet Communist Party boss Nikita Khrushchev indicated later that the suggestion was receiving favorable consideration because of the December Paris NATO summit conference's assurances of peace.

The reductions were nothing more than a token, Western intelligence estimates the Soviet armed forces total about 425,000 men in Eastern Europe alone. Of these, barely one-seventh would be pulled back to the Soviet Union.

It was believed in the West that reorganization of the Red army for atomic tactics would just about account for the overall cut of 300,000 men—just as U. S. forces are being streamlined.

Seek Husband in Slaying of Wife In Church Study

ROCK RAPIDS, Iowa — Police today sought a young husband whose estranged wife was fatally shot in a church study minutes after their first child was baptized.

The Rev. Paul Freeman, pastor of the Congregational Church, told police Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hoskins had their first child baptized in private ceremonies in the church Sunday afternoon.

He said the couple asked to be alone for a few moments after the baptism, so he left them with the child. Police said later that sometime during their meeting Mrs. Carol Hoskins, 23, telephoned her father, Wilbur Oldenburg of Rock Rapids, and asked him to drive to the church to pick her up.

Four Traffic Deaths in State

By United Press
Illinois motorists posted an encouraging traffic safety record during the first weekend of the new year.

A United Press count showed at least four persons killed in traffic accidents, including one traffic drowning.

Henry Padfield, 63, Lebanon, drowned Friday night when his car swerved from the road and plunged into a creek near Summerfield.

An East St. Louis man rammed the rear of a tractor trailer near his home town Saturday and was injured fatally. He was William Vickers, 34.

Mrs. Dorothy Stark, 33, Genoa, was killed Saturday when her car skidded down an incline into the side of a Milwaukee Road passenger train near Genoa.

Richard Konkel, 21, Rantoul, died of shock and exposure when his car veered off the road into a drainage ditch Sunday near Champaign.

Atlas Ready For Launching

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — A brawny Atlas intercontinental missile, mightiest so far prepared by the United States in reply to Russian rocket threats, was poised again today for firing some time this week.

Harsh winds lashing the cape and its great missile towers were expected to continue at least another day, however, and could delay the first test launchings of the new year.

Best guess for triggering of the blunt-nosed, 90-foot Atlas was Wednesday, the day after Congress reconvenes to consider the staggering sums needed for bolstering the nation's defenses—in particular the guided missile development program.

To Resume Operations at Fluorspar Mine

Fluorspar mining will be resumed on property of the Rosiclare Lead and Fluorspar Mining Company in Hardin county. The company has been closed down since March, 1954, following the sharp reduction of fluorspar prices by reason of substantially enlarged foreign imports of fluorspar, notably from Mexico. Prior to its closing down, the Rosiclare Lead and Fluorspar Mining Company had been America's largest and oldest consistent producer of fluorspar.

Wiley Cochran, M. L. Conn and Ted Joiner, independent mining operators with offices in Elizabethtown, have negotiated and received mining leases on fluorspar mining property of the company located in the northern region of Hardin county. The lessees expect to commence mining operations and exploration work within a few days.

The leases provide for percentage royalty payments to the Rosiclare Lead and Fluorspar Mining Company, and for technical mining supervision by Rodney W. McClusky, mining engineer of Golconda, J. Blechisen, president of the company, stated.

Fluorspar is used in the manufacture of steel, aluminum, hydrofluoric acid, fluoro-carbon chemicals used as coolants for refrigerating systems, pressurized gas for aerosol containers, and to make resins for fluoro-plastics. Fluorspar also is the source of elemental fluorine used in atomic energy plants, and as an oxidizing agent in the new exotic high energy fuels designed for missile usage. It is estimated that about 650,000 tons of fluorspar were consumed in the United States in 1957, up 10 per cent from 1956.

Assembly in '57 Approved Traffic Safety Program, Korean Bonus, Record Road Plan

SPRINGFIELD (U.P.) — The Illinois General Assembly in 1957 approved a new traffic safety program, judicial reform, a Korean veterans' bonus, a record-breaking road building program and a 248-million-dollar bond issue for construction at state colleges, universities and mental hospitals.

The Legislature killed "right to work" and "anti-organizational picketing" bills, and proposals to ban the death penalty, lower the voting age to 18 and appoint rather than elect the state auditor and state treasurer.

Another important law passed set up a $600,000 state scholarship program to help needy and talented students go on to college. The law provides the scholarship winners may go to private or public schools, thus easing the pressure for additional public facilities for higher education.

New Speed Law

The 1957 Legislature also distinguished itself when the House, for the first time in more than 20 years, overrode a governor's veto. However, the Senate refused to go along with the House on Rep. Robert W. McCarthy's bill, and Gov. Stratton's veto stood.

The six-month session opened in a wave of enthusiasm for Hodge scandal reforms, several of which were approved. It ended in never-proved charges of another scandal, this one involving alleged bribery in the passage of a bill to legalize parimutuel betting on jai alai games.

Stratton vetoed the bill on jai alai, a kind of South American handball.

The key measure in the governor's traffic safety program was a new rigid 65-mile-an-hour speed limit for automobiles with lower limits for other vehicles, and a 500-man increase in the state police force. Also provided was 10 million dollars for state aid to driver education in the schools.

The judicial reform amendment to the state constitution must still be submitted to the voters in 1958 for their approval.

New Auditing Commission

The 75-million-dollar Korean veterans' bonus plan also will be submitted to the voters in 1958. It would be financed through a 1-cent-a-pack increase in the cigarette tax.

The record-breaking highway program proposed by Stratton amounted to a grand total of 643 million dollars, most of it in federal funds for the interstate system.

Hodge scandal reforms approved by the Legislature included creation of a new department of financial institutions, a new legislative audit commission, and a mild lobbyist registration act.

Perhaps the best news to come out of the Legislature for most persons was that there was no new sales tax increase. However, the 1955 increase in the tax from 2 to 2½ cents on the dollar was extended indefinitely.

In the matter of taxes, the Legislature also approved a new township multiplier law, under which the Revenue Department will apply tax multipliers at the township, rather than the county, level. The law was aimed at school districts which allegedly claim an unfair share of state school aid because of too-low local tax assessments.

The 248-million-dollar bond issue also must be submitted to the voters in 1958.

Finally, the lawmakers raised the pay of all state employees, including their own and the governor's. The legislators go from $5,000 a year to $6,000, and the next governor gets $30,000 a year instead of the present $25,000.

Humphrey Says Adlai Proposals Were Rejected

CHICAGO (U.P.) — Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) charged Sunday night that Adlai Stevenson turned down a bid to attend the NATO conference in Paris because the Eisenhower administration rejected his foreign policy proposals.

Humphrey spoke at a meeting of more than 1,000 Democrats at a dinner of the Illinois Federation of Democratic Women's Clubs.

Humphrey said Stevenson's efforts to help formulate foreign policy as a State Department consultant were wasted because his ideas were turned down by the "intellectual arthritis of the State Department."

The Minnesota Democrat said President Eisenhower should out Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and he said unless the President cleans house in the Cabinet, the United States will continue to lag behind the Soviet in foreign affairs.

Indiana and Illinois Trim Northwestern, Wisconsin; Shoot for Second Straight

CHICAGO (AP) — Indiana and Illinois shoot for their second straight victory tonight as Big Ten basketball teams head into the second round of championship play.

The Hoosiers and the Illini, along with Ohio State and Michigan, enjoyed first division status by virtue of Saturday night victories.

Indiana, which lost six of seven games to pre-season rivals, trimmed Northwestern, 68-65, and Illinois scored its seventh success in eight games in winning the conference opener, 64-59, against Wisconsin.

The Illini entertain Iowa tonight and Indiana travels to neighboring Purdue. Wisconsin is at Michigan in the remaining conference game, while Minnesota goes to Kansas State for an inter-sectional battle.

The Hoosiers joined Ohio State to demonstrate that pre-conference records don't mean a thing on opening night.

The Buckeyes, whose only victory came at the expense of Yale after seven straight losses, produced the week's upset Saturday night by toppling Michigan State, the nation's sixth-ranked team and last season's co-champ, 70-56.

The Spartans entered the race with an impressive slate of seven wins in eight starts but they were baffled by Ohio State's backboard control and floor accuracy which left them behind, 41-22, at the half. They finished strongly but were never able to overtake the rampaging Buckeyes. Larry Huston led the scorers with 14 points and Frank Howard potted 13 for Ohio.

The Hoosiers' big gun was Jerry Thompson, a 6-5 senior forward who showed little in earlier games. Thompson netted 23 points against the Northwestern defense. Archie Dees, the league's scoring leader last season, bugged only 3 points in the first half and 11 in the last.

George Kline and Roger Johnson of Minnesota jumped to the top of the Big Ten scoring leaders by leading the Gophers to an 83-70 triumph over Purdue. Kline bagged 31 points and Johnson 25.

Don Ohl and Governor Vaughn paced the Illini victory with 21 points and 16 respectively against a taller Wisconsin club.

M. C. Burton and Pete Tillotson took charge of Michigan's offensive against the Hawkeyes. The Wolverine aces paced a hot second half surge which produced a 73-56 victory after trailing at the intermission. Burton's output was 21 points and Tillotson got 19.

Pros Lead Hawaii Stars to 53-34 Hula Bowl Win

HONOLULU (AP) — Eleven grizzled old pros played the first half like a bunch of eager sophomores trying to earn first string berths Sunday to pin the ears back on a College All-Star team in the 12th annual Hula Bowl.

By the time the sellout crowd of 25,000 had settled back in Honolulu Stadium the pro-studded Hawaii All-Stars had racked up their first score and by the end of the first quarter the game had all the aspects of an old fashioned rout. At halftime the score stood 40-7.

The final score of 53-34 didn't reflect a contest where one team was only 19 points better than another. The pros — the likes of Tobin Rote of Detroit, Joe Perry of San Francisco and Elroy Hirsch of Los Angeles — played the collegians into the ground in the first half and eased up in the final 30 minutes to give an air of respectability to the game.

The College All-Star offensive sputtered and misfired much of the first half. Jim Ninowski of Michigan State had the chore of directing the collegiate offense. The hard charging pro line swarmed all over him, giving him little opportunity to get off any accurate passes.

John Crow, Texas A&M's stellar back, scored three of the collegians' five touchdowns on runs of three, six and thirteen yards. His outstanding performance earned him best back of the game honors.

Perry, the Forty-Niner's veteran ground gainer, led the pros in the scoring with four touchdowns. Joltin' Joe cracked over for two off tackle and scored on two short passes from Tobin Rote.

West Frankfort Trips Eldorado Eagles, 74 to 28

West Frankfort, loser of only one game this season, made Eldorado its 11th victim Saturday night, taking a 74-28 decision on the WF floor.

The game was won in the first half as West Frankfort held a big 42-20 margin at the intermission.

Eldorado made a good comeback, trailing by only 11 points on two occasions in the third quarter, then the winning West Frankfort Red Birds spurred way out in front and the reserves played most of the fourth period.

West Frankfort shot 71 times from the floor, hitting 28 for a .394 average. Eldorado had a .362 shooting average with 21 hits in 58 tries.

The preliminary game, won by Eldorado 42-40 in an overtime, was a dandy.

West Frankfort led 21-11 at half time, then the young Eagles battled back and had a 38-38 tie at the end of regulation time.

In the overtime, with time running out and the score tied 40-40 West Frankfort played for one shot, firing and missing with only seconds to go. Eldorado got the rebound, passed to Anderson who shot from the center of the floor. The ball swished through as the buzzer sounded, Eldorado winning 42-40.

Eldorado plays once this week, hosting Johnston City Friday. West Frankfort plays at Marion Friday and entertains Centralia Saturday.

XXV
There was silence for a moment. Then I said gently, "Honey, I told you before—you're asking for trouble."

She said coolly, "What's wrong with saying goodbye to a friend, even if he is married. Besides, I have something of Wayne's. Something I want to return. A pair of binoculars he loaned me."

"Forget it," I said. "You can give me the binoculars. I'll see that he gets them."

When she spoke again she didn't look at either Howell or me and her voice was low and not quite so controlled. "I've got to see him. I can't let him go away without a word from me. I—" She paused and drew on the cigarette.

And then Hugo Howell did a strange thing. He reached out and touched Honey's hand. "Maybe I'm off base, but I wish my son had picked you, my dear. But it's too late now." His rasping voice sounded softer than I'd ever heard it.

Honey gave him a fleeting smile. "Thank you, Mr. Howell." Then she stood abruptly, picked up the purse, walked out the street entrance.

The thin waitress came over with an inquiring expression. Howell ordered more rye. I told her to bring me the pickered dinner and suggested to Howell that he order some food, too. But he just shook his head silently. My dinner arrived presently and he had more whiskey while I ate. By the time I'd finished my coffee there was a bright, wicked gleam in his eyes and he was beginning to slur his words. "Take it easy," I warned.

Then Otto came out of the kitchen, buttoning his white jacket. I heard Thelma say viciously, "It's about time."

"Sorry, Thelma," Otto said. "I overslept. I'll work for you tomorrow." He smiled at her.

"You'd better," she snapped, and flounced away.

Howell sneered. "What kind of hours does he work, anyhow? He's here and he ain't here. I think I'll have a few words with the booth. I stopped to get out of the booth."

I stopped him with a hand on his arm. "Sit down. You've caused enough trouble in here."

He shook off my hand and lurched out of the booth. I grabbed for him, missed, and he moved unsteadily to the bar, carrying his glass. I saw Otto's lips tighten, but there was nothing but polite inquiry in his expression. Howell said something in a low voice. Otto turned away, ignoring him, his face impassive. As I started to get out of the booth, Howell threw his glass at the bartender. Otto ducked and the glass crashed in to the tier of bottles behind the bar. Howell laughed loudly and came lurching back toward the booth, a wild gleam in his eyes. All around the room people were buzzing angrily.

The manager came running in from the lobby, his face pink with anger. He stopped and stared aghast at the wreckage back of the bar. The waitress silently pointed a finger at Howell. The manager went up to him. "I've had quite enough of you. I want you to pay your bill and leave this hotel immediately. Immediately." He almost stamped his foot.

Howell placed a palm on the manager's chest and pushed him violently backward. The manager crashed against a table and almost fell. Women screamed. "Call the police!"

I started for the phone on the bar, but just as I did so, Gus, the young policeman, came in from the street, his face grim. I jerked a thumb at Howell. "You're just in time. Better look him up."

By this time people were milling around and two men were trying to restrain Howell, who was struggling and shouting. The manager danced on the perimeter of the scuffle screaming, "We can't have this!" Otto stood quietly behind the bar watching the scene. Except for a cold gleam in his pale eyes, his face was as stolid as an Indian's.

Gus spoke sharply to the men struggling with Howell. "Let him go."

The men released Howell and stepped back, panting. Howell stood weaving, his face contorted in a kind of grin. Gus said sternly, "You're under arrest," and reached out to take Howell's arm.

Howell jerked his arm away and shook his head. "No, I ain't going with you."

I said to Howell, "You'd better go with him."

"Shut up," he said, without looking at me. "Who asked you to nib in?" He reached backward, lifted a beer bottle from a table, and hefted it by the neck while beer foamed over his trousers.

Gus' right hand moved to the flap of his revolver holster. I moved then. Howell was still my client, and I didn't want to see him shot. In the second place I wanted him off my hands for the evening; I had other plans, and they did not include playing nursemaid. So I stepped in fast, before he had a chance to swing the bottle, and before Gus could draw his gun. I almost hated to hit him. Almost, but not quite. I swung a right, hard and short, to the side of Howell's beefy jaw, and there was a satisfying knuckle jar. He staggered against a table and the beer bottle rolled over the floor. Gus moved fast then, his hand switching from the holster to the handcuffs on his belt. In less than a second the groggy Howell was manacled and Gus was half dragging him to the street door. I followed, and as the three of us went out there came from the bar the sound of applause.

How Pensions Affect Jobless Benefits in State

An older worker who files claim for unemployment benefits is now required to report the amount of pension, retirement pay or Social Security benefits he receives, State Director of Labor Roy F. Cummins pointed out today.

"This information is required under a recent change in the Illinois Unemployment Compensation law," Cummins explained. "Benefits to which a claimant might otherwise be entitled are reduced by the amount of his retirement pay if his pension or retirement pay was entirely paid for by his former employer."

"If only part of the cost of the worker's pension or retirement pay was paid for by the employer, only half the amount received is deducted from his unemployment benefits. Half the amount of an old age insurance benefit under the Social Security Act is also deducted," the Director continued. Maximum Payments Raised

Weekly unemployment benefits now range from $10 to $45. Maximum payment for a person without dependents is $30; with a dependent spouse and no dependent children it is $33; for one dependent child, $36, two dependent children $39, three dependent children $42, and with four dependent children $45. Payments may be less than maximum, based on the claimant's wage credits. For a claimant who works part time because of lack of work and who earns less than his weekly benefit, the amount of earnings disregarded in computing his weekly benefit amount is $7.

The claimant must be genuinely in the labor force, able to work full time, registered for work with the State Employment Service, available to accept a suitable job, and actively seeking work by his own efforts. He is also required to have been paid wages of at least $600 in a specified recent period for insured work. Not less than $150 of his wages during that period must have been paid him outside the calendar quarter in which his wages were highest.
